GETTING REBELLIOUS.

Manitobans Becoming More Excited—John A. Denounced.

Prince Ferdinand's Heroics—New Gov. of California.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 13th.—Open rebellion is everywhere talked of against the conduct of the Dominion in applying for an injunction to stop building the Railway, and the Red River people are preparing to organize in order to be ready in case of emergency. It is stated this morning on excellent authority that Sir John Macdonald has written to several Conservatives threatening to execute vengeance on the people of the province if they do not submit. He is denounced on all hands and will be burned in effigy at the proposed demonstration shortly to be held. All newspapers in the province, Conservative as well as Reform, denounce the dominion government and call upon the people to stand firm and defend their rights with their blood if necessary.

LOST IN A GALE.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—The British bark Balaklava, from London for San Francisco, was dismasted in a gale on July 29th near the Straits of Magellan. Ten of the crew were lost overboard.

"LONG LIVE BULGARIA."

SOFIA, Sept. 12.—A meeting of the National party was held yesterday, when eight hundred persons were present. After the meeting the procession was formed and marched to the palace, where they cheered Prince Ferdinand; thence they proceeded to the residence of M. Karavelloff and threw stones at the windows. The Police were unable to quell the disturbance and many of them were injured. The mob then visited the office of the opposition journals and the windows, shouting "Down with traitors." Then they returned to the palace, where Prince Ferdinand appeared on the balcony. Resolutions adopted at meeting were read to him, and in reply he said, "Love me; be good patriots; Long live Bulgaria." The crowd then dispersed, singing the national anthem.

AMERICAN NEWS.

HEAVY RAINS.

TUCSON, Ariz., Sept. 13.—Heavy rains last night extended into Sonora, where five miles of track and three bridges were washed away; damage, over $200,000.

THE FISHERY COMMISSION.

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—There are hints that the administration's fisheries commission scheme may fall through entirely. One reason is the trouble in finding men who will go on the Commission. Another is probably that before the Commission got fairly under way it would be met with a resolution from the Senate denouncing the whole business. It cannot be learned who the President and Secretary Bayard invited to act as American Commissioners, but they are all said to be distinguished. The matter of pay probably had nothing to do with their refusal to serve, as there are enough contingent funds, out of which the Secretary of State could squeeze their allowance.

GOV. BARTLETT'S SUCCESSOR.

OAKLAND, Sept. 5.—Gov. Bartlett died at 5 o'clock to-day.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 13.—Lieut.-Governor R. W. Waterman was inaugurated Governor of California this morning in the parlor of the Occidental Hotel, Chief Justice McFarland administering the oath of office. After the latter had been taken the new Governor, in a tremulous voice, read his address, the greater portion of which was a glowing tribute to the deceased executive. The inaugural address was followed by a proclamation announcing Governor Bartlett's death, and recommending that on the day of his funeral all business throughout the State be suspended. The funeral will take place Friday at 11 a. m. from Pioneer Hall.

THE ANARCHISTS.

OTTAWA, Ill., Sept. 13.—The condemned anarchists will be relieved of their suspense before many hours, in all probability, and anxiously await the decision to be handed down at the opening of the Supreme Court to-day. It, however, for reasons which may seem sufficient to the Justices, it is withheld, it will see the light on Wednesday. Under the law the Court is compelled to make oral announcement of the decision reached, and if the verdict of the Court below is affirmed, the day of execution will be set at the same time. There are no attorneys here in behalf of the prisoners to file a motion for a re-hearing in the event of an adverse decision. This step, however, would fail to act as a bar to carry out the sentence unless a reprieve was granted by the Governor.

A TRIAL RACE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—In a trial race to-day between the Volunteer and the Mayflower, the former crossed the line 40 seconds ahead of the Mayflower. They were followed by the Thistle.

PITCAIRN'S ISLAND.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 9.—The British ship Hahneman, Captain Hughes, arrived in this port yesterday from Newcastle, New South Wales, with a cargo of coal. The vessel left Newcastle on June 25th. On July 23rd the ship sighted Pitcairn's Island, the Island rendered notable as being the spot where the mutinous crew of the British ship Bounty sought refuge in 1789. It was about dusk when the Hahneman approached the Island. Several men in a small boat were seen pulling out and the ship hove to. The boat came alongside and was found to contain several residents of the Island. They came aboard, and an hour or so was passed in conversation with Capt Hughes and his crew. Among the visitors were Young, McEvoy and Christian, all of whom are direct descendants of the members of the Bounty's crew. Young who was in this city a few years ago, is now quite aged. They report all well at the island settlement, but they told of no events of great importance to the outside world. The colony there in 1869 numbered only seventeen people, now it has a population of 107. Of this number fifty-seven are women. During the past two years only three deaths occurred. Several letters were given to Captain Hughes to mail in San Francisco. Most of them were addressed to friends in England, but one of them was for a resident of this city.

CRUSHED TO DEATH.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 13.—Joseph Furbush, teamster, was instantly killed this morning while at work. Furbush was driving through the lumber yard when he fell from his seat on the wagon and the wheels passed over him, crushing him to death.

ROTHSCHILD BUYS A MINE.

TUCSON, Sept. 13.—The El Carmen mine in Arizpe district, Sonora, has been sold to Baron Rothschild, of London, for $162,000.

LORD HERSCHELL.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 13.—Among the guests who came to the Palace Hotel yesterday were Lord and Lady Herschell of England. They arrived from Victoria, B. C., via Portland.

STANLEY IN AFRICA.

Sir Francis De Winton's Opinion—The Dark Continent.

Sir Francis De Winton, well known in this city as aide-de-camp and secretary to the Marquis of Lorne during his term as Governor-General of Canada, on the 6th inst., delivered a lecture in Manchester, England, before the British Association, descriptive of his travels and those in Central Africa. Sir Francis referred to the efforts of the King of the Belgians to open the Congo district to trade and civilization. Sir Francis remarked that he was happy to say that the mischievious rumors which had been circulated of the death of Stanley were without foundation. There was no doubt that Stanley, in his arduous expedition to relieve Emin Pasha, had been successful. It was probable that at the end of July or beginning of August, Emin Pasha and Stanley had met. The speaker said that he himself had received a letter from Stanley dated the 19th of June, in which he spoke of his situation and assured him (Sir Francis) of his (Stanley's) probable success. The great territory of Central Africa, instead of being inhabited by a freebooting, work-hating people, was now peopled by happy and fairly contented tribes, who offer no serious obstacle to their being governed by other nations, though alien to them in everything. Two years residence among the people inhabiting the Congo district had convinced him that much depended upon the form of administration that might be adopted, and one must not place too much reliance on the conditions imposed by the Berlin Treaty. Conferences and pie-crust were made to be broken, and a five per cent duty on all imports, would by furnishing a revenue, have been better than the fifty years free entry clause, because a good revenue meant a stable and firm Government. The Congo Free State would be most valuable provided a railway was built to connect the Upper Congo and the ocean. To the zoologist and sportsmen few lands offered such opportunities.

While there were 50,000,000 people waiting to be clothed by the merchants it remained for the world to accept the great grant of a rational land and knowledge its responsibilities, by hurling back the tide of Mohammedan invasion, which was setting in from the north and from the east, and then in the fullness of time, the glory of Christianity would illumine the land.

At the close of Sir Francis' interesting lecture, a vote of thanks was moved to him by a couple of well-known African explorers, who bore testimony to the correctness of the statements made.

The New York Herald's correspondent asked if he had any fresher news to communicate about Stanley than appeared in his letter of August 10th. He said he had none, but expected more about the last of October, when he should immediately communicate the same to the public. I asked if had any misgivings about Stanley, and he most emphatically answered, "No."

PROVINCIAL POLICE COURT.

(Before E. Johnson, Q. C., S. M.)

Charlie Albert, a Victoria Indian, arrested by Cons. Thomas and charged with being drunk and disorderly, fined $5 or one week.

Jack Louie, arrested by Constable Thomas, charged with being drunk and disorderly, fined $5 or one week.

John Weller summoned the C. P. N. Co. for non-payment of wages. Mr. Taylor appeared for the plaintiff, T. Davie for the defence. After hearing the evidence of Capt. White, John Weller, and others, His Honor dismissed the case. Weller had agreed to work by the month and His Honor could not allow the complainant wages when he left the situation without fulfilling his agreement.

NEWS OF THE WORLD.

Two young ladies, Agnes McCormick and Bella Lauder, were drowned at Toronto while boating in the bay.

The Maverick oil works at Boston were burned on the 7th. Five men were burned to death.

A fire started in Grange's drug store at Newburgh, Ont, on the 7th, and aided by a high wind destroyed nearly all the business portion of the village. Over thirty residences were destroyed and families left houseless. Jno. Wells was seriously burned, and may not recover. The loss is estimated at $250,000; insurance not known.

The Seabird Case.

In the Provincial Court this afternoon His Honor Judge Johnson, at the request of Superintendent Roycraft, remanded the Indians charged with the murder of Henry Moore and others. News is momentarily expected of the arrest of more participators in the crime. The case will be heard on the 21st inst., until which date the prisoners were remanded.

Catarrah, Catarrahal Deafness and Hay Fever.

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membrane of the nose and eustachian tubes. Microscopic research, however, has proved this to be a fact, and the result is that a simple remedy has been formulated whereby catarrh, catarrhal deafness and hay fever is cured in from one to three simple applications made at home. A pamphlet explaining this new treatment is sent free on receipt of stamp, by A. H. Dixon & Son, 305 King street West, Toronto, Canada.—Christian Standard.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

A Rationalist's View of Port Angeles' Community.

The Arcadians of Metlakahtla—Capt. Jones Explains.

THE PORT ANGELES PROBLEM.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

DEAR SIR,—By your Saturday's issue I see you have a short account of our trip on Friday last on the Evangel, and as your correspondent has omitted much that came under our observation, I will try to fill up some of the blanks. Our trip to Roche Harbor was a delightful one, and the place itself found to be well worth visiting. A snug harbor, substantial wharf, and a large general store on the end of it, and further up covered sheds for lime, waiting shipment. At present two kilns are used, different to any I have ever seen. They are not large, but I am told they are capable of turning out 1000 barrels per week, which is nearly all sent to Tacoma, and from thence by rail to all parts of the country. The lime made here they say is almost as good as Portland cement. Preparations are being made to extend the work. A new kiln is now in course of erection, will be upon an improved plan, and lined with iron. The proprietors of these kilns belong to Tacoma, hence all the business belonging to the works is carried on there excepting the burning of the lime. From here we had a delightful sail to Port Angeles, which we reached about midday. On landing I made my mind up to see what was to be seen, and to my surprise I found a colony established here that I had no knowledge of. In fact I found a body of men laying the foundation of a new state of society, and upon introduction to the principals I found them to be made of the right material. After close examination of the principles upon which they are about to erect the superstructure of the new order of things, I am convinced it will prove one of the greatest blessings that has been born to poor humanity for thousands of years. At present they have secured several thousand acres of land, and, what I saw, is the finest that could be wished for. I consider they have one of the finest town sites that could be had—good soil, magnificent views, water not to be surpassed and sufficient for any city, and a harbor nature has prepared for them, and must be seen to take in all its advantages. This colony has only just been born, and yet it is surprising to see what has been done. A large saw mill has just been completed, capable of turning out from 15 to 20 thousand feet of lumber per day and of good quality. Bricks are being made, and soon a tannery will be in operation; in fact every branch of trade will soon be here in full play. I was delighted to see the steam printing press, and the staff of printers, and Mrs. Hall, the editress of the newspaper, which has a circulation of some 2000 copies weekly. The present population is about 450, but as houses are erected families will arrive to occupy them, as they have some 1500 waiting to come as soon as they can be accommodated. Many are living in tents, and temporary houses are being put up for the winter, and it takes all the lumber the mill can turn out to supply their own demands and will continue so for some time. Some will ask what provision are they making for the training of the young. Well, their religion is the religion of humanity; their great object and aim is to make men and women happy in this life. At present they work eight hours per day, and by and by they may shorten the time to six hours and two Sundays in each week, not for so-called worship but pleasure and improvement, and what is calculated to raise humanity to a higher platform of spiritual living, and to prepare them to live in harmony with each other here and hereafter without the blighting effect of all theological teaching. Schools are generally under the care of ladies as they should be, and the young will be well cared for without the use of Sunday school and Bible classes. All property is held in common, and every member has an interest in protecting his brother member, and harmony must rule, for as soon as any violation of harmony occurs, the cause will be speedily removed. In conclusion I wish I could have spent a few weeks to see more clearly the working of their plans, but I have seen enough to satisfy me that it is a move in the right direction, for it must be obvious to all thinkers that things are not going to last long as they are. If men think so they must be short-sighted. I may have something to say about this colony anon. Our trip home from Port Angeles was a sneezer; nearly all paid tribute to Neptune and landed with empty stomachs. HUMANITY.

METLAKAHTLA TROUBLE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR,—I am sorry, as an old resident of British Columbia, that Mr. Duncan has removed his followers from Metlakahtla. The majority of the people in Victoria were hoping that the government would have settled matters so that this valuable settlement, one of the most important in this province, would have been induced to remain. But it appears not to be so. I, for one, cannot see why the Dominion Government could not have met Mr. Duncan in a liberal manner, so that the departure of these people would have been prevented. The Metlakahtla people are an industrious and well-behaved class, able to subsist by following the ordinary trades or callings. When Sir John A. visited this province last summer, the claims of the Metlakahtla people were plainly put before him, and as he is head of the Indian Department at Ottawa, no blame can be attached to anyone but himself. When he was in this city we understand he had an opportunity of going fully into this affair, which no doubt he did, and what is the result? Through utter neglect and indifference Mr. Duncan and the Metlakahtla tribe are lost to British Columbia forever. We have heard of the mal-administration of the Indian affairs but this seems the worst yet. The trade with this city, produced by the inhabitants of Metlakahtla, was yearly among the thousands, and many of them visited Victoria periodically, thus leaving the greater portion of their earnings with us. This, with their departure, is gone, and the trade, which has grown to large proportions with the Northwest coast is ruined.

This industrious trait was the largest and most enterprising along the route. Taking the whole subject, with all its bearings, the neglect on the part of the Dominion government is most shameful to Indians—more so as this class had become civilized and were like ourselves in habits and endeavors. The loss is irreparable to British Columbia, and the blunder now apparently cannot be remedied. We shall wait patiently to hear what Sir John A. has to say in defence of his conduct. His defence will no doubt be after the same strain as given for the uprising in the Northwest, when he maintained that no trouble existed until blood had been drawn. So it is with the Metlakahtla trouble, the people have asked the government to defend them but they have not been heeded. The matter has been dealt in a trifling manner, although the people have been threatening to go for the last year. Negotiations have been going on with the United States Government, but the Dominion Government have passed over them unheeded. The results are that we have in those that are left a very dissatisfied race; those that are gone are lost to us forever. Let this matter be fought out and let us place the responsibility on the right shoulders. The deed is done and some one has blundered. RESIDENT.

OUR HOSPITAL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR—I notice that Dr. Edmunds, of London, who visited Victoria last week, gave an address on "Hospitals" before the Mayor and Aldermen of Vancouver, on Friday last. Some of his remarks are very appropriate to us, and worthy of our consideration at present, as we are about to erect a hospital. There are points brought out by him which should be considered by Victorians of which I quote a few.

"In regard to the location of the hospital," he said, "it was very desirable that it should be as near as possible to the centre of the city, not only for accessibility, but also from the fact that it would be an important feature in the city, one that could be shown to visitors with pride. * * * It should certainly be as near to the Inlet as possible and not far from the C. P. R. station and wharves, as most of the accidents would no doubt occur in that vicinity. * * * If the location was too far out, it would probably happen that cases would be relegated to a resident house surgeon, as the visiting medical officers might not be able to spare the time necessary for going any distance."

I make these quotations as I suppose those who selected the site for our new hospital are a class that possibly will go there only when they have leisure. The time of the surgeon, or the feelings of the patient, were, I should judge, entirely ignored. Imagine a man, or a woman, riding in a wagon or cab from any part of the city fronting on the harbor to the site now selected for the new hospital! I am sure anyone riding two miles, under such circumstances, would think but kindly of those who were the means of placing hospital accommodation at such disadvantage. Dr. Edmunds, an authority as he is, is also attendant to one of the hospitals in London, states positively that hospital accommodation should be placed in the heart of the city. There seems to be other questions which have not been properly considered in connection with the new hospital, namely, the proper supply of water and the proper facilities for drainage. No doubt these are in the minds of the trustees, but they will necessarily be very expensive and inefficient, placed, as the hospital will be, far beyond our city limits. Mr. Editor, these are facts which have been considered before, but it may not yet be too late to reconsider this question of having our hospital placed in the country.

A CITIZEN.

A CONTRADICTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR—Referring to your edition of last Thursday, regarding the "unseemly conduct of two gentlemen guests of the steamer Maude," and the collision of that vessel with the steamship Abyssinia, I most emphatically deny both assertions. No such "conduct" or "collision" occurred, and no damage was done to the scuttles. The best proof of the latter is that the "officials" have received from Capt. Marshall no complaint whatever. I may add that the reason the steamship Abyssinia did not sail in the evening was, to use Capt. Marshall's own words to me, "because it was too smoky and he preferred waiting for daylight." Trusting you will insert this denial in fairness to me, I remain,

In Brief and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember! No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

Fire! Fire!!

The undersigned beg to notify their customers and the public generally that they can be found on Fort Street, two doors above Blanchard, until the premises lately occupied by them are rebuilt, and are now ready to supply all kinds of confectionery at lowest prices.

REDGRAVE & ELLA.

From Surgeon-General Bergin, M. D., M. P., Ottawa, May 21, 1884.—Mr. B. Laurance.—Dear Sir: I cannot let you leave the city without expressing my satisfaction with the spectacles I had from you. I find that I can read the smallest print perfectly and without fatigue to the eye, for an hour or more, which I have not hitherto been able to do since I commenced the use of spectacles. B. Bergin, M.D.

THE FISHERY COMMISSION

The following has been published as a statement authorized by Secretary BAYARD. "Three Egnlishmen and three Americans, the latter to be selected by Secretary BAYARD, are to meet in Washington before long to talk over the Canadian fisheries question, with the hope of settling that long disputed problem as to the boundary line between the United States and Canada. Secretary BAYARD proposes, if possible, to bring about a permanent settlement of the fisheries question, which he will consider the crowning event of his diplomatic experience. England and America have been in controversy over the Canadian fisheries for more than one hundred years, each country setting up certain claims and positively refusing to concede one inch of leeway to the other. England has no desire to go to war with the United States over a few fish, as the former finds the latter a very profitable neighbor and is too shrewd to interrupt the commercial relations existing between the two countries. Englishmen now run over to America and become rich, while Americans flock over to England and become poor. Rather than disturb these pleasant relations, England is willing to meet America half-way and talk the matter over. What the outcome will be no one is prepared to say, but if the representatives of the two countries reach an understanding it remains for the two governments to ratify their work. Mr. BAYARD declines to state whom he will select to represent the American fishing interests at the proposed international consultation, but he claims to have several in his mind's eye who will uphold the dignity and look out for the rights of American citizens under any circumstances." Another statement, coming from Washington via London, says it is understood that President CLEVELAND has already settled the composition of the American half of the commission. He will appoint one Democrat, one Republican, and one representative of the fishing interests. These three nominations have been agreed on, and the positions offered to the individuals selected.

ESQUIMALT FINALLY SELECTED.

Captain WEBBER, of the Pacific Steamship Service, assures THE TIMES that Esquimalt has been finally selected as the port of call for the trans-Pacific steamships. The Captain is satisfied that Esquimalt is one of the most commodious and safest harbors on the coast, easy of access, and perfectly secure at all seasons, possessing ample accommodation for the fleet of steamers to ply between this province and the Orient. Those who attach blame to the Captain for not having the steamers call at Victoria are doing him an injustice, for as far back as the middle of June, when the first vessel—the Parthia—arrived, he began an agitation in favor of Victoria. The whole matter rested with Mr. FRAZAR, of New York, Sir WILLIAM PEARCE and Messrs. ADAMSON & Co., London, and Mr. MCGREGOR of Glasgow, Sir WILLIAM PEARCE's manager. The insurance question was the stumbling block, as a deviation in the vessel's course from that specified in the policy, between Yokohama and Vancouver, would militate against a low rate being secured by insurers. After much correspondence, by letter and cabling, the matter was left to the captain's own discretion. The correspondence written by him on the subject is voluminous, almost filling an ordinary-sized letter-book. He fully therein sets forth the importance of Victoria's trade to his company, as well as to the Canadian Pacific Railway. He has strongly urged the necessity of cultivating friendly relations with the business men of this city. Mr. MCGREGOR then cabled him to instruct all vessels to call at Victoria inward and outwards. The Parthia was requested to do so, but her captain declined; for doing so, and other matters contrary to Captain WEBBER's desires, Captain BROUGH was relieved of the command of that vessel. It is true that on the first outward trip they called here, because Capt. WEBBER insisted on his authority being respected. His instructions to Capt. MARSHALL, of the Abyssinia, miscarried, in consequence of neither Capts. MCALLISTER or URQUHART boarding that vessel. Instructions now have been cabled to Yokohama, where a Superintendent of the line has also been appointed. Negotiations with the Post Office authorities were also opened by Capt. WEBBER, relative to carrying the British and Canadian mails, as early as the second week in June. These mails were to be taken up and sent off at this port.

The selection of Esquimalt, although not so satisfactory to our merchants or citizens as would be the landing of the vessels in our harbor, were it adapted for such heavy draught vessels as are certain to be placed in the service, is a step a long ways in the right direction. It is difficult to estimate the importance of the step to this city and to Esquimalt. The coaling of these floating triumphs of naval architecture will always be a serious problem. If means can be devised, mutually satisfactory to Mr. DUNSMUIR and the steamship company, and Esquimalt shortly to become—as nature intended that port should be—the coaling port for the orintal line, Victoria will be largely the gainer thereby. Then it will be in order for Mr. DUNSMUIR to construct large bunkers capable of storing from 2000 to 3000 tons of coal, with ample facilities to enable a vessel to load in a few hours. A train could whirl the mails, passengers and express freight into the city, landing them at the foot of Cormorant street inside of 30 minutes after the vessel cleared the customs. Freight could also be taken in at a mere nominal figure and rapidly. It is quite within the possibilities that all this will happen, and that in a few months. If so the foudest desire of Victorians will be more than realized and the goodwill of the city at large secured for the line and its officers.

POLITICAL AND PERSONAL.

It has been announced that the Queen will confer the order of knighthood upon Dr. Morell Mackenzie for his servicesto the Crown Prnce.

American securities in London continue strong under the impetus imparted to the stock market by the adjustment of Baltimore & Ohio affairs.

Sir John will probably represent Canada on the Fishery Commission. The Premier expects to leave for England shortly, and to return in company with Chamberlain.

At a Nationalist meeting at Middleton, on the 5th inst., ten miles from Armagh, several policemen who were detailed to keep order were attacked and badly injured.

The London Local Government Board's report on the emigration of pauper children to Canada is just issued. Out of 488 children sent out in one year it is reported that 348 are doing well.

It is generally believed a new Lieut. Governor of Quebec will be immediately appointed as no administrator has been named. The Hon. Messrs. Caron, Starnes and Joly are mentioned.

It is believed that Sir John's hasty visit to Toronto was in connection with the Fisheries' negotiations. He held a prolonged interview there with the Governor-General, lasting nearly two hours.

A letter in the London Standard of the 5th inst., signed "Plain Englishman," makes very exaggerated charges against the Atlantic live cattle trade on the strength of the losses reported on the steamer Scotland, from Montreal last week. Some controversy on the subject is sure to ensue, but the statements put forward are absurd and can easily be rebutted.

Many noted Americans went to Hawarden on Sunday, 4th inst., to pay their respects to Mr. Gladstone and attended church, where he read the lessons of the day. After service the path from the church door was lined on both sides by Americans and visitors, who greeted Mr. Gladstone with much warmth as he passed on his way home. He returned each greeting cordially.

The trial of the election petition against Sir Charles Tupper is fixed for October 4th, before Judge McDonald. The trial of the petition against Mallory, Liberal, East Northumberland, began at Osgoode Hall Toronto, on the 8th inst. The cross petition on the West Huron case will be tried on the 16th of November, at Goderich. The case against Dr. Roome, Conservative, West Middlesex, is fixed for the 12th of December, at Strathroy.

The Duke of Marlborough's visit has split society at Newport. His disreputable Grace has done the Americans the service of showing them that there is something in the way of titled scoundrelism at which a part of the American social world draws the line. The refusal of Mrs. Henry Clews to give Marlborough an invitation to her musicale when his hostess asked for it was just the snub his American toadies needed. Mrs. Paran Stevens and the other partisans of this aristocratic social outcast must enjoy their position. So says the San Francisco Post.

The use of electricty as a motor for street railways is rapidly gaining favour. Already there are fourteen electric railways in successful operation in the United States, and in that country and Canada twenty-three more are in process of construction. The Street Railway Journal gives also a list of twenty nine other similar roads that are projected and for which franchises are sought. Nearly a dozen systems are in the market, but the Van Depoele and the Daft take the lead. Electricity has not overcome all the obstacles in the way of and filled all the conditions of a perfect street railway motor, but at the present writing it may be pronounced without hesitation a success.

In determining to meet the coal ringsters by importing anthracite from Wales, the Montreal Water Commissioners have taken an excellent resolution, and one that may have very important, good results in Canada. Anthracite is not extensively mined in Wales, nor does it exist there in very extensive beds, but there is enough to supply Canada for years to come, and the production will probably be cheapened considerably by a large demand. If Welsh anthracite is sent to Canada in large quantities we shall be delivered from the Yankee coal ring, and, as the vessels can be loaded with wheat for the return trip, our forwarders and farmers may gain considerably in freight The Montreal Water Commissioners have the right stuff in them, evidently.

CHAPTER VIII.

ALPHONSE EXPLAINS

And so the fight was ended. On turning from this shocking scene it suddenly struck me that I had seen nothing of Alphonse since the moment, some twenty minutes before—for though this fight has taken a long while to describe, it did not take long in reality—when I had been forced to hit him in the wind with the result of nearly getting myself shot. Fearing that the poor little man had perished in the battle, I began to hunt about among the dead for his body; but not being able either to see or hear anything of it, I concluded that he must have survived and walked down the side of the kraal where we had first taken our stand, calling him by name. Now, some fifteen paces back from the kraal wall stood a very ancient tree of the banyan species. So ancient was it that all the inside had in the course of ages decayed away, leaving nothing but a shell of bark.

"Alphonse!" I called, as I walked down the wall—"Alphonse!"

"Oui, monsieur," answered a voice. "Here am I."

I looked round, but could see nobody. "Where?" I cried.

"Here am I, monsieur, in the tree."

I looked, and there, peering out of a hole in the trunk of the banyan about five feet from the ground, I saw a pale face and a pair of large mustaches, one clipped short and the other as lamentably out of curl as the tail of a newly whipped pug. Then, for the first time, I realised what I had suspected before—namely, that Alphonse was an arrant coward. I walked up to him. "Come out of that hole," I said.

"Is it finished, monsieur?" he asked, anxiously; "quite finished? Ah, the horrors I have undergone, and the prayers I have uttered!"

"Come out, you little skunk," I said, for I did not feel amiable; "it is all over."

"So, monsieur, then my prayers have prevailed. I emerge;" and he did.

Thoroughly disgusted, I left Alphonse to look after himself, which he did by following me like a shadow, and proceeded to join the others by the large entrance. The first thing that I saw was Mackenzie, seated on a stone, with a handkerchief twisted round his thigh, from which he was bleeding freely, having indeed received a spear thrust that passed right through it, and still holding in his hand his favorite carving knife; now bent nearly double, from which I gathered that he had been successful in his rough and tumble with the Elmoran.

"Ah, Quatermain!" he sung out, in a trembling, excited voice, "so we have conquered; but it is a sorry sight, a sorry sight!" and then, breaking into broad Scotch, and glancing at the bent knife in his hand, "It fashes me sair to hae bent my best carver on the breasthane of a savage," and he laughed hysterically. Poor fellow! what between his wound and the trifling excitement he had undergone, his nerves were much shaken, and no wonder. It is hard upon a man of peace and kindly heart to be called upon to join in such a grewsome business. But there, fate puts us sometimes into very ironical positions!

At the kraal entrance the scene was a strange one. The slaughter was over by now, and the wounded men had been put out of their pain, for no quarter had been given. The bush closed entrance had been trampled flat, and in place of bushes it was filled with the bodies of dead men. Dead men, everywhere dead men; they lay about in knots, they were flung by ones and twos in every position upon the open spaces, for all the world like the people on the grass in one of the London parks on a particularly hot Sunday in August. In front of this entrance, on a space which had been cleared of dead, and of the shields and spears which were scattered in all directions as they had fallen or been thrown from the hands of their owners, stood and lay the survivors of the awful struggle, and at their feet were four wounded men. We had gone into the fight thirty strong, and of the thirty but fifteen remained alive, and five of them (including Mr. Mackenzie) were wounded, two mortally. Of those who held the entrance, Curtis and the Zulu alone remained. Good had lost five men killed, I had lost two killed and Mackenzie no less than five out of the six with him. As for the survivors, they were, with the exception of myself, who had never come to close quarters, red from head to foot—Sir Henry's armor might have been painted that color—and utterly exhausted, except Umslopogaas, who, as he stood on a little mound above a heap of dead, leaning as usual upon his ax, did not seem particularly distressed, although the skin over the hole in his head palpitated violently.

"Ah, Macumazahn!" he said to me as I limped up, feeling very sick; "I told thee that it would be a good fight, and it has. Never have I seen a better, or one more bravely fought. As for this iron shirt, surely it is 'tagati' (bewitched); nothing could pierce it. Had it not been for the garment I should have been there," and he nodded toward the great pile of dead men beneath him.

"I give it thee; thou art a gallant man," said Sir Henry, briefly.

"Koos!" answered the Zulu, deeply pleased both at the gift and the compliment. "Thou, too, Incubu, didst bear thyself as a man, but I must give thee some lessons with the ax; thou dost waste thy stregth."

Just then Mackenzie asked about Flossie, and we were all greatly relieved when one of the men said he had seen her flying towards the house with her nurse. Then hearing such of the wounded as could be moved at the moment with us, we slowly made our way towards the mission house, spent with toil and bloodshed, but with the glorious sense of victory against overwhelming odds glowing in our hearts. We had saved the life of the little maid and taught the Masai of those parts a lesson that they will not forget for ten years, but at what a cost!

Painfully we made our way up the hill which, but a little more than an hour before, we had descended under such different circumstances. At the gate of the wall stood Mrs. Mackenzie waiting for us. When her eyes fell upon us, however, she shrieked out and covered her face with her hands, crying: "Horrible! horrible!" Nor were her fears allayed when she discovered her worthy husband being borne upon an improvised stretcher; but her doubts as to the nature of his injury were soon set at rest. Then, when in a few brief words I had told her the upshot of the struggle (of which Flossie, who had arrived in safety, had been able to explain something), she came up to me and solemnly kissed me on the forehead.

"God bless you all, Mr. Quatermain! you have saved my child's life," she said simply.

Then we went in and got our clothes off and doctored our wounds. After that we had a bath, and what a luxury it was! and having clad ourselves in ordinary clothes, proceeded to the dining room, where breakfast was set as usual. When we were finishing our breakfast the door opened and in came little Flossie, very pale and tottery, but quite unhurt. She kissed us all and thanked us. I congratulated her on the presence of mind she had shown in shooting the Masai with her Derringer pistol, and thereby saving her own life.

"Oh, don't talk of it!" she said, beginning to cry hysterically; "I shall never forget his face as he went turning round and round, never—I can see it now."

I advised her to go to bed and get some sleep, which she did, and awoke in the evening quite recovered, so far as her strength was concerned. It struck me as an odd thing that a girl who could find the nerve to shoot a huge black ruffian rushing to kill her with a spear should have been so affected at the thought of it afterwards; but it is, after all, characteristic of the sex. Poor Flossie! I fear that her nerves will not get over that night in the Masai camp for many a long year.

When breakfast was over we all turned in and had a good sleep, only getting up in time for dinner; after which meal we once more adjourned, together with all the available population—men, women, youths and girls—to the scene of the morning's slaughter, our object being to bury our own dead and get rid of the Masai by flinging them into the Tana river, which ran within fifty yards of the kraal.

We buried our dead in solemn silence, Good being selected to read the burial service over them (in the absence of Mr. Mackenzie, confined to bed), as he was generally allowed to possess the best voice and most impressive manner. It was melancholy in the extreme, but, as Good said, it might have been worse, for we might have had "to bury ourselves." I pointed out that this would have been a difficult feat, but I knew what he meant.

Next we set to work to load an ox wagon which had been brought round from the Mission with the dead bodies of the Masai, having first collected the spears, shields and other arms. We loaded the wagon five times, about fifty bodies to the load, and emptied it into the Tana. From this it was evident that very few of the Masai could have escaped. The crocodiles must have been well fed that night. One of the last bodies we picked up was that of the sentry at the upper end. I asked Good how he managed to kill him, and he told me that he had crept up much as Umslopogaas had done and stabbed him with his sword. He groaned a good deal, but fortunately nobody heard him. As Good said, it was a horrible thing to have to do, and most unpleasantly like cold blooded murder.

And so with the last body that floated away down the current of the Tana ended the incident of our attack on the Masai camp.

In the evening I had an interview with Mr. Mackenzie, who was suffering a good deal from his wounds, which Good, who was a skilled though unqualified doctor, was treating him for. He told me that this occurrence had taught him a lesson, and that, if he recovered safely, he meant to hand over the Mission to a younger man, who was already on his road to join him in his work, and return to England.

"You see, Quatermain," he said, "I made up my mind to this this very morning, when we were creeping down upon those benighted savages. If we live through this and rescue Flossie alive," I said to myself, "I will go home to England; I have had enough of savages. Well, I did not think that we should live through it at the time, but thanks be to God and you four, we have lived through it, and I mean to stick to my resolution, lest a worse thing befall us. Another such time would kill my poor wife. And besides, Quatermain, between you and me, I am well off; it is £30,000 I am worth today, and every farthing of it made by honest trade and savings in the bank at Zanzibar, for living here costs me next to nothing. So, though it will be hard to leave this place, which I have made to blossom like a rose in the wilderness, and harder still to leave the people I have taught, I shall go."

"I congratulate you on your decision," answered I, "for two reasons. The first is, that you owe a duty to your wife and daughter, and more especially to the latter, who should receive some education and mix with girls of her own race; otherwise she will grow up wild, shunning her kind. The other is, that as sure as I am standing here, sooner or later the Masai will try to avenge the slaughter inflicted on them today. Two or three men are sure to have escaped in the confusion, who will carry the story back to their people, and the result will be that a great expedition will one day be sent against you. It might be delayed for a year, but sooner or later it will come. Therefore, if only for that reason, I should go. When once they have learned that you are no longer here they may perhaps leave the place alone."

"You are quite right," answered the clergyman. "I will turn my back upon this place in a month. But it will be a wrench; it will be a wrench."

BETWEEN THE LINES.

Dear friend, I sit alone to-night,
And so to you I fain would write;
But not in humdrum black and white,
With common ink and paper,
Such words as I would say to you
Should blazoned be in tender hue,
As monks of old in missal drew
Initials tall and taper.

If I could borrow just a part
Of all their quaint symbolic art,
I might translate what's in my heart,
Perhaps, in fitting fashion;
But where's the modern pen can hold
Sufficient store of red and gold
To paint this leaflet, snowy cold,
With tints of pain or passion?

In vain you'll seek, then, on this page
Fair fancies from a bygone age;
Yet if you wish my thoughts to gauge,
There is a way of gleaning
Love's golden grain that through them shines;
So do not heed these written signs,
For you must read between the lines
To gather all my meaning.

The Properties of Coca.

Mr. Du Pre expresses the opinion that coca is the most potent nervine at man's disposal. "Its hygienic properties are disclosed from its physiological properties," is the verdict pronounced by a Spanish physician resident at San Salvador, who furthermore declares that in hot infusion coca is the most useful and healthful beverage one can drink after dining. It is especially commendable to the feeble and to those who have transcended the limits of sobriety in using alcohol, and, therefore, should be tested in asylums for inebriates. It surely and certainly calms nervous excitability, and, used in small quantities, enables one to endure cold, rain and snow, and to defy great fatigue, and restores the forces impaired or lost by excesses.

In South American countries it is popularly used for indigestion, disordered stomach, hysteria, flatulency, colic and all intestinal troubles.

It is employed constantly by toilers in the mines, and when they reach the mines after marching several days through forests and over mountains, sustained alone by the use of coca and maize, they are permitted to eat at discretion through four days and have perfect rest. Cocaismo, or habitual intoxication by use of coca, becomes more incurable than alcoholism or servitude to opiates, but its consequences are not yet wholly measured nor determined. Excessive and constant use of the coca as an intoxicant begets rapid moral and intellectual degradation and decay, and the steady decline is interrupted at intervals by resistless impulses of violence and brutality. The nature of the parent, when perverted by the drug, is transmitted to the offspring, and the inveterate vice, operating through generations, is said to account for the brutality of certain races of Indians, notably the Quichas and Aimaras of the Bolivian fastnesses.—Washington Cor. Chicago Herald.

Sick with Anxiety.

"Goodby, my dear," he said to his wife as the bell rang for all ashore. "I hope you will have a pleasant voyage with your friends, but I shall be sick with anxiety to hear of your safe arrival."

"Shall I cable from Queenstown, John?"

"Heavens, no! Send a postal card."—New York Sun.

A Muscular Author.

It is said that Bulwer described women as angels in his books and whipped his wife at home. Well, a man who follows the scientific profession of an author must have some sort of exercise. Bulwer is to be commended for not taking his wife away from home to whip her.—Norristown Herald.

Fire.

The alarm of fire at 11:40 last night was caused by a employee of the Driard burning a quantity of paper in a two-story residence on View street. A piece of lighted paper ascended the chimney and set fire to the roof of the building. The fire department turned out promptly. A large conflagration was averted by a number of citizens ascending to the roof with buckets of water. The building is owned by Mr. McNiffe, and occupied by employees of the Driard.

Blessing the Churches.

The Winnipeg Sun states that St. Mary's Church, in that city, and the St. Boniface Cathedral have been blessed after the Orthodox fashion. This ceremony it is intended to carry out on the return of their Graces Archbishops Tache and Fabre from the coast. Sunday, the 25th inst., has been appointed for the ceremony of blessing St. Mary's Church, and the following Sabbath St. Boniface Cathedral will be blessed. It is expected a large number of clergy will take part, and the ceremonies will doubtless be highly interesting ones.

Hop Pickers.

The Post-Intelligencer of Saturday says: "It is said, after careful estimating, that over 3,000 Indians went up the Sound this year to engage in hop picking. Two-thirds of these came from Vancouver, and are what are known as the King George Indians. The other 1,000 are from Neah Bay. The British Columbia Indians do all of their trading with the Sound cities, principally with Seattle." It is to be hoped the customs officials will keep a sharp look-out for the return of the Indians, for it is known that they bring back with them large quantities of contraband goods. They are as much entitled to pay duty as any other class of citizens.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. THE WATER WORKS.

Report of Water Commissioner—Proposed Extension.

At the special meeting of the City Council last night—which adjourned for want of a quorum—the report of Mr. Peter Summerfield, Water Commissioner, was informally read and ordered to be printed. Mr. Summerfield estimates—certain conditions being conceded—that the effective discharge of the present twelve-inch main is 800,000 gallons per day, leaving 700,000 to be provided to conform to the requirements of the by-law. To supply this, it is recommended that a 16-inch main be laid from Elk Lake to some point on the east side of the city, having an elevation of 150 feet above high water mark. This point will be 42 feet below the lake, and the fall will be equal to 7 feet per mile, and give an effective discharge of 1,000,000 imperial gallons. To supply the higher levels from this elevation, the whole discharge of the 16-inch main should be diverted into three cast-iron distribution pipes, of ten inches diameter, each one of which to be laid to the higher levels, and the other two to be laid to the lower levels, and connected with the distributing system supplied by the present 12-inch main, all obstructions being removed. The report states: "Any house at present erected will be amply supplied with water, under good pressure; and in case of fire, the storage capacity of the 16-inch main as a reservoir holding over 300,000 Imperial gallons, and in direct contact with the principal reservoir at Elk Lake, coupled with the present 12-inch main, also containing 200,000 gallons under the same conditions, will supply the Fire Department with all that they may require. A new 16-inch main together with the present 12-inch main, will, I believe, satisfy all conditions, and give an ample supply for all purposes until the City attains twice its present proportions." As to cost the Commissioner states that a 16-inch main of mild steel, fully equal to any main in use on the Pacific coast, can be laid down for $8000 per mile, leaving excavating and refilling to be done by the corporation. The report concludes: "In order that the full head of water in the lake may be utilized, either at high or low water, I would advise that a submerged main of 30 inches diameter, (of similar material and construction to the 16 inch main) be laid from the filter beds to Elk Lake. The entry end in the lake to be provided with grating, and located well below water level. The discharge ends at the filter beds to be provided with a stop gate, in order to be able always to control the discharge. The water thus discharged into the filter beds, will, I believe, be purer and less charged with sediment than the water at present supplied to the city, and after passing through the filter beds, ought to comply with the by-lay. The 30 inch submerged main from the filter beds to Elk Lake, can be laid complete for about $3 per lineal foot. After the main is made, and delivering water to the city, then proceed with high level reservoir; but nothing should be done in the matter until the high level 10 inch main is in operation, so as to determine the most practicable site, and obtain the highest possible elevation for the reservoir."

OUR WATER WORKS.

Mr. Pickering Heard From—His Opinion of the City Fathers.

Mr. Richard Pickering of Whitehaven, England, who visited Victoria last year and reported upon our Water Works system, writes the following letter to a prominent citizen of Victoria. It is dated the 24th of August. He says:

I cannot say how much I was pleased to peruse your very kind and thoughtful letter to Mr. Crompton, dated 29th July, and how much we are indebted to you for sending the reports of the Water Committee and of Mr. Bell re the Water Works enlargement. Also the clippings from the newspapers, showing the discussions and opinions pro and con. Until I read your letter I was not quite certain that Higgins was taking a view antagonistic to the scheme of enlargement, I sketched out in my report of the 14th April, 1886, to the Council. Query: Has the Council printed my report and distributed it along with Hendry's, Bell's, Mahood's and Water Committee's report? If they have not, it is an oversight; because my report is as clear as broad daylight to the position of the Water Works then and even in the future. In case you have not it in remembrance, I will quote here a couple of paragraphs or so. After describing the works proposed and the reasons why they are necessary, occurs the following: "The foregoing works of extension would enable you to give the city a constant service within its limits, and also to supply some places beyond the limits for a few years. But as Victoria extends and becomes filled up, so to speak, I think the present main from Elk Lake will, in time, need to be replaced by one much larger in diameter; and at the same time a new and extensive filtering bed and a clean water well should be constructed distinct from the present filters, but not far distant, so as to enable the water to pass through slowly. There is organic matter entirely of vegetable origin, but in solution and in suspension, in the water, which is not however, dangerous to health, though it would be better if it was, filtered through a proper medium."

"A modern constructed filter bed even (besides taking out of the water suspended matter) oxidises the water by dividing the particles almost indefinitely, and thus changes and expands matter in solution. "The works herein recommended for early execution would form part of a large work which might be carried out in the future."

"You will thus see that I took a distant view of the position as well as of the present. Now, what does all the learned rubbish contained in the reports which the Council, by their silly action, have drawn on their heads from Jack, Tom and Harry amount to?"

In order that the high parts of Victoria be supplied at a fair pressure a high level with a tank is absolutely necessary, an additional new main from Elk Lake would not remove the necessity, but would lessen it somewhat, as there would be a greater rush of water to supply the draught in the city, from 7 a. m. to 8 p. m. But Elk Lake is not high enough to supply the high parts by gravitation; therefore pumping of some sort is necessary, and by my scheme this would have been done by the delivery from Elk Lake into the low level service reservoir, to be constructed on the level plateau at the back of Beacon Hill Park. See my report, but please see report in Hall of City Hall. Every part of the works recommended for immediate execution in my report of the 14th April, 1886, is essentially a part of what would be needed if, in the future, a new and larger main was laid from Elk Lake to the city. I venture to say that if the Council had placed the carrying out of the works in our hands, that after we got the machinery, tank, &c., ready for fixing, six months would not have elapsed before both high and low levels would have been satisfactorily supplied, at a cost only commensurate with sound work.

When Mr. Hargreaves retired, Mr. Crompton wired (a little against my will) might we prepare detail plans, &c. The Council had, however, made other arrangements; that is, they commence to quarrel and admit voluntary reports. If I were in Hendry's position I would certainly let the Council do as they pleased; but the worst of it is that the general ratepayers of the city also suffer by blunders being made. I hope His Worship the Mayor will stand firm in this business; but while I say this I remember that time has elapsed since July 29th, and will elapse before this reaches you, and some decision may have been come to. I hope the very influential petition you presented may have good effect. It was the right thing to do under the circumstances, but I observe from the Weekly Colonist, of July 29th, that the Water Committee's report of July 20th was rejected by five to three—the Mayor not having a vote, except in the case of a tie.

I could write a slashing letter completely showing up the absurdities advanced by Higgins, Braden, Coughlan and others of the majority of the Council, as well as of the utter nonsense advanced in some of the reports, but time passes so swiftly that my remarks would appear six weeks too late to tell with effect. Therefore, I must be content to be sorry that the Council is making such a muddle of the matter. You are at liberty to make any use of this letter you think fit if necessary.

We have had a remarkably dry and warm summer; only barely the average amount of rain has fallen. Many of the town water supplies are about exhausted, but we are doing well in West Cumberland, in that respect, but business is dull.

We expect to be busy with water-works in consequence next winter and summer. I will always be pleased to hear from you and will always be glad to see any of you when in England. RICHARD PICKERING.

Bargains for Country Cousins.

I once bought a coat upon which I discovered the letters "P. M.," and when I buy ready made clothing I scrutinize it to learn whether it is labeled in the same manner. I will explain: It is the custom in some stores after taking stock to set aside certain goods which have passed the season of their fashion, or which would not command a ready sale, and marking them "P. M." to give the clerks a premium or per cent. for selling them. Of course, it is to the interest of the clerk to work off this stock, but not on customers. Strangers get the "P. M's." During the time when there is a rush in the store, or at such a time as fair week, when the country cousin is hunting for bargains, the clerks bring the P. M. goods to the front. Most people in the city keep pace with the prevailing fashions and are not easily deceived. Then the P. M. stock remaining unsold after a time is sent to the country, where style does not prevail.—T. D. Hardy in Globe-Democrat.

The H. B. Conference.

Messrs. Alex. Munro and J. H. Lawson returned last evening from Winnipeg where they were attending the Hudson Bay Conference. Mr. J. R. Smith will not be back for a couple of days yet. Mr. Lynch, whose name appears on the list of the factors present, was not at the conference. Messrs. Munro and Lawson are loud in their praise and admiration of Winnipeg, the vastness of the country east of the mountains to that city, the grandeur of the scenery in the mountains, the excellence of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the magnificence of its entire equipment, the ease and the comfort with which people now-a-days travel.

Winnipeg itself was a genuine surprise to those gentlemen. Its Main street, paved for over two miles, as level as a well laid floor and 132 feet in width, lined from the Assiniboine to Kildonan with fine brick structures, some of them perfectly magnificent at once commands admiration. The city itself is a wonder. Its shops and warehouses are equally surprising. The people are hospitable to a degree and are extremely hopeful of the future. This year there will be exported from the province at least 7,000,000 bushels of wheat. This will put the farmers on a good footing and give them a fine start. For days they rode through a wonderfully rich country. On every side was to be observed fields of grain which would undoubtedly yield splendid returns. At the Conference they met officers of the company from all parts of the great Northwest. The dinner given by the Chief Commissioner was one of the grandest affairs ever witnessed in Winnipeg. Messrs. Munro and Lawson were at their wonted posts this morning feeling greatly the benefit of their trip across the mountains, and, notwithstanding all they saw and heard, pleased to be again treading the streets of the Queen City of the North Pacific, in which they have lived so long and occupied so honorable a position.
